

EG Top 10 Most Read For Week Ending Jul 3, 2026

送信者: Eurasia Group 受信日時: 2026-07-03 21:11

【要点】

- ・中国は重要鉱物以外の新たな支配力を開発し、標的国に対して報復手段を洗練させている。
- ・ブラジルではボルソナロ前大統領の支持が漏洩音声問題の沈静化に伴い回復し、ルラ大統領の決選投票での優位性が縮小している。
- ・米国がカナダ・メキシコと別々の取引を追求する中で、自動車産業が不均等な関税や規則の影響を最も受ける可能性がある。
- ・ホルムズ海峡の再開とアメリカ・イラン協議の維持により、2026年の石油市場は供給過剰になりブレント油は65～80ドル範囲に留まると予想される。
- ・ロシアは複数の製油所への攻撃に対しても、核兵器使用やベラルーシの参戦といった過度なエスカレーションを回避する可能性が高い。

1 China, Global Macro: China's chokepoint leverage goes beyond critical minerals

By EG China, EG Global Macro, Amanda Hsiao, et al.

China is developing new chokepoints beyond critical minerals, which it can leverage against target economies. China is also refining the tools to retaliate against a wider range of foreign actions. □

2 Brazil: Bolsonaro's standing recovering as fallout from leaked audio fades

By EG Brazil Research, Raul Folino, Christopher Garman, et al.

A new Nexus poll, fielded from 26 to 28 June, shows Senator Flavio Bolsonaro recovering among voters following the leaked audio and President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva's runoff lead narrowing. □

3 China, EU: Trade confrontation will escalate despite managed pause

By EG China, EG Europe, David Meale, et al.

China-EU: Trade confrontation will escalate despite managed pause □

4 United States, Trade & Supply Chains: Auto sector most exposed in prolonged North American trade shift

By EG United States, Nancy Wei, Graeme Thompson, et al.

Under "Zombie USMCA", auto sector is most exposed as it could face uneven tariffs/exemptions/ROO as US pursues separate deals with Canada and Mexico—hurting small/low-margin, cross-border-optimized suppliers the most, firms with large US manufacturing footprints better positioned □

5 Oil: Gulf supply flood will keep Brent in $65-$80 range in 2026

By EG Energy, Climate & Resources, Henning Gloystein, Gregory Brew

The rapid reopening of the Strait of Hormuz and slow pace of demand recovery will push the market into over-supply this year, assuming the US-Iran deal holds and the strait remains open. □

6 Ukraine Crisis: Worsening fuel problems make limited Russian escalation against Ukraine likely

By EG Europe, Alex Brideau, Dani Podgoretskaya

Russia is likely to avoid extreme escalation—use of a nuclear weapon, forcing Belarus into the war, or more destructive hybrid operations—in response to Ukrainian attacks on Russian refineries. □

7 Geo-technology, China: Zhipu's gains point to escalating competition and supply-chain decoupling

By EG Geo-technology, Xiaomeng Lu, Heather West

New Chinese model offers strong performance at low cost. This could reinvigorate cooperation between Chinese and Western firms, complicating congressional push to tighten export controls. Deep domestic suppliers integration suggests growing Chinese supply chain independence. □

8 Brazil: Lula's reelection odds increase to 60% as approval ratings rise

By EG Brazil Research, Christopher Garman, Silvio Cascione, et al.

Eurasia Group is raising President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva's reelection odds to 60% from 55%, driven primarily by rising approval ratings rather than by the damage to Flavio Bolsonaro's image from the Master Bank scandal. □

9 Energy, Climate & Resources, Geo-technology: Energy constraints will limit but not collapse Europe's AI infrastructure growth

By EG Energy, Climate & Resources, Conor Frydenborg, Nick Reiners, et al.

Energy constraints will limit but not collapse Europe's AI infrastructure growth. Grid congestion and high power prices will prevent the EU from tripling data center capacity by 2030, while inference and sovereign cloud workloads offer strong growth prospects. □

10 Geo-technology, EU: AI dependency draws Europe toward Washington despite tech sovereignty push

By EG Geo-technology, Nick Reiners, Heather West, et al.

European leaders will seek to anchor model access guarantees in the transatlantic alliance— even as the bloc pursues tech sovereignty in parallel. A megaproject to build an Anthropic-level lab is almost certainly politically and economically unfeasible. □
