USMCA Joint Review: Key Points and Future Outlook

- How Should Japanese Companies Prepare? -

☐ Recommended for the following:

☐ Companies exporting to North America

☐ Companies with manufacturing bases or sales subsidiaries in the US, Mexico, or Canada

☐ Business planning, procurement, and trade operations personnel at companies interested in entering the North American market

The USMCA, a trade agreement comprising the United States, Canada, and Mexico, reached its sixth year of implementation and underwent its first joint review by all three countries on July 1, 2026. However, no agreement to extend the agreement has been reached due to US opposition aimed at tightening existing rules. The USMCA is embedded in North American trade rules and corporate supply chain strategies, and attention is focused on the direction of these negotiations.

In this webinar, on-site representatives from the United States, Canada, and Mexico will explain the key issues and future prospects of the joint review from each country's perspective. We will also provide a clear overview of the impact on Japanese companies and points of concern in supply chain restructuring, based on the latest developments.

*This webinar is limited to participants within Japan.

■ Live Streaming Date and Time:

Friday, August 7, 2026, 10:00 AM - 11:30 AM

[Webinar] Changing Automotive Industry in Latin America

- Latest Developments in Mexico, Mercosur, and Pacific Alliance Countries -

The automotive markets in Latin America, centered on Mexico and Brazil, are undergoing transformation against the backdrop of shifts in US trade policy, USMCA review, and FTA promotion by Mercosur. Furthermore, beyond countries like Chile and Peru that rely on imported automobiles, there is a notable rise of Chinese automotive manufacturers even in countries like Brazil with large domestic demand-driven manufacturing sectors.

This webinar will explain the latest automotive market trends in major Latin American countries as well as the impact of each country's trade policies on the automotive industry.
